Blender Interface Progress

I am creating a new dashboard management system for ChatGPT: Exploring the development of a dashboard for managing and optimizing GPT models, as currently, there is no dedicated dashboard for this purpose. After conducting my research, I have narrowed down the possible user base to power users that have custom GPTS, which could range from engineers to developers. I will be creating a space where the potential user will be able to interact with the new dashboard and have the ability to use a companion device.

In the second phase of the project, I will be adding the companion device as well as a space for the user to operate the interface.
